THE BOOK

'A desire map, a cartography of eros... A heartbomb' - Lidia Yuknavitch, author of The Book of Joan

In 2005, a young woman with no name embarks on a fraught three-way relationship with Matt, a tattoo artist, and his girlfriend Frances, a new mum. She begins to recognise the dark undertow of obsession and jealousy that her presence has created between Matt and Frances, and finds herself balancing on a knife's edge between pain and pleasure, the promise of the future and the crushing isolation of the present.

With stripped-down prose and unflinching clarity, Nash examines madness in the wreckage of love, and the loss of self that accompanies it.

PRaise for ANIMALS EAT EACH OTHER

'Nash writes brilliantly and viscerally about the connections between physical and emotional intimacy. There is a superbly tactile flow to her beautiful, stripped-down prose that absolutely sucks the reader in... Brilliant stuff' -

Big Issue

'A gem of a novel about desire and relating, yearning, fucking, and fucking up. Also a little bit about Satan but don't let that put you off. Let it put you on' - Rhik Samadder

'Nash writes with psychological precision, capturing Lili's volatile shifts between directionless frustration, self-destructiveness, ambivalence and vulnerable need. A complex, impressive exploration of obsession and desire' - Publishers Weekly (starred review)

'Electric, sensual and brutally human, Nash explores the boundaries (or lack thereof) when it comes to sexual desire. It is an exquisitely crafted work where every sentence feels so important, so real that it stings the skin' -

Medium

'Raw, moving and utterly original' - PopSugar
